

DISSEMINATION OF A THESIS

Benefits of online dissemination:

- Promoting and sharing your work
- Securing your authorship and protecting your thesis against plagiarism
- Increasing your visibility, freely and free of charge
- Contributing to the advancement of research

Where will your thesis be indexed and/or available?

- Paris-Saclay University Library Catalog: Focus
- Sudoc : www.sudoc.abes.fr
- Theses.fr (French thesis Database): www.theses.fr/
- HAL-thèses : <https://theses.hal.science/>

Please note that self-archiving is different from a legal deposit. Do not upload your thesis on HAL yourself

- Dart-Europe (European Database): <https://www.dart-europe.org/>

Different dissemination options

Please note that some details of your thesis will be made public on the internet (titles, keywords, and abstracts), no matter which dissemination option you chose

❖ Option 1 – You would like your thesis to be available online:

The full text of the thesis will be available online after the validation of your final deposit

❖ Option 2 – You would like your thesis to be available online after an embargo period:

Embargo = withholding the online availability of your thesis (up to 5 years. Can be extended beyond that upon substantiated request 1 year after the defense at the earliest)

For example: you might still be in the process of publishing certain parts or results from your thesis

- Your thesis will still be available on request to the thesis department, on-site or to any member of the French academic community
- Once the embargo is lifted, your thesis will be available online

❖ Option 3 – For legal reasons, you would like parts but not the whole of your thesis to be available online:

For example: You might have included copyrighted material without taking the necessary precautions or asking for the required authorizations.

You need to submit 2 versions of your thesis: a complete version and an edited version

- The complete version will be available on request to the thesis department, on-site, or to any member of the French academic community
- The edited version will be available online

➤ A distinct option: confidentiality (patent application or classified information)

- Apply for confidentiality by addressing a request to the Director of your institution 3 months before your defense
- During the confidentiality period, your thesis will not be available to anyone
- Once the confidentiality is lifted, your thesis will be available online right away or after an additional embargo period
